Yes, Too: While ill-starred U-2 pilot FRANK J. POWERS was serving 21 months in a Russian jail, wife BARBARA GAY POWERS lived with her mother in Milledgeville, Ga. Last week, in Milledgeville, Ga. brick courthouse, tittering teenagers and housewives heard a woman witness tell of surprising her own father with Barbara when both were "indecently dressed." Barbara's counsel, noting that the witness's parents have been divorced, asked in cross-examination: "Your mother and father have always had trouble, haven't they?" "Yes," she said. "Just since Barbara Powers has been in Milledgeville." Powers himself testified that Barbara drank too much and had said: "The only reason I was ever treated like this while I was in prison was my wife Barbara. I left her out of it without a letter." An Atlanta judge gave Powers his divorce, granting Barbara a $5,000 settlement and $500 for lawyer's fees.
